

of New York City

Stephanie Ruhle Hubbard

Anchor, MSNBC Live and NBC news correspondent

Stephanie Ruhle Hubbard is currently an anchor with MSNBC Live and an NBC news correspondent. Prior to holding this position, Stephanie was an anchor on Bloomberg News. Before joining Bloomberg News, she was a managing director at Deutsche Bank focusing on credit derivatives. As part of senior management, she dealt with the bank's largest clients for its Corporate and Investment Bank business.

Stephanie began her career while studying abroad in Italy, when she took an internship position at Merrill Lynch. She subsequently joined Credit Suisse and was engaged in hedge fund sales and trading. Stephanie is very involved in several social initiatives designed to advance girls and women including the White House Project where she was a Corporate Council participant, 100 Women in Hedge Funds, and the Women's Bond Club.